Uniforms

1. Personnel of the Hungarian Air Force and Army wore olive drab uniforms. The blouse had a high collar, two breast and two side pockets and five brass buttons. The HAF insignia was a blue rhomboid patch, about two cm wide and five cm long, with a white edge two cm wide. Staff sergeants and grades above wore a wing and propeller insignia of gold and a brass button with the national seal on the collar patch. Rank insignia was worn on shoulder boards about 12 cm long and 4 1/2 cm wide. The background of the shoulder boards worn by the Air Force was blue. First three graders and commissioned officers wore Sam Browne belts and a Soviet-type 7.62 caliber pistol was worn as a side arm. The lower four grades wore flight caps, with the armed forces insignia on the front. This insignia was a five-pointed red star, superimposed on three circles of red, white and green. First three graders and officers wore visor caps with a brass insignia representing the national seal.
